The SAP system holds sensitive personal and financial data; it is therefore vital that you maintain the security of the system by:

- Choosing a secure password. (The password must be at least 8 characters in length and must include both letters and numbers, using both upper and lower case, and may use any printable keyboard symbols.)
- Not divulging your password to any other person in any circumstances. (No-one will ever require you to divulge your password for operational reasons.)
- Never using or attempting to use another person's user id and password.
- Never knowingly attempting to access data for which you have not been granted authorisation.
- Never leaving your workstation unattended when logged in. In the event of an emergency, consider your own safety first and do what you can to secure the system under the circumstances.

Failure to follow these rules may be treated as gross misconduct; any other act or omission which compromises security may also be regarded as misconduct. In either case, any allegation would be subject to investigation and consideration under the normal disciplinary procedure.
